

The Daily Courant.

Wednesday, November 19. 1715.

From the Hague Courant, dated Nov. 8.

Naples, October 15.

ON Tuesday the two Tuscan Gallies that have been in the Levant with the Venetian Fleet, sailed by this Place in their return home. General Wallis is departed for Vienna. The Recruits that have been sent here for the two Neapolitan Regiments that are in Hungary, are sent to Fiume to pass forward to Austria. This Morning the German Soldiers who went into the Venetian Service and revolted, went by a Genoese Ship to Puglia, in order to be carried to Corsica.

On Monday an Express arrived from Rome, acquainting the Pope's Nuncio in London, that he was immediately to Castel Gandolfo to deliver the Letters to his Holiness. On Tuesday an Indulto was published, whereby all those that have been banished for Life, or condemned to the Gallies, except such as are guilty of Treason or such high Crimes, are recalled and pardoned, upon Condition that they go into the Venetian Service, for the term of two years, the latter for two Years. The said Pope has resolved that 100000 Scudi out of the Dispenfations that are in the Datarj shall be applied to the Service of the Venetians.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Nov. 8.

On Oct. 19. The Emperor has granted considerable Pensions to divers Catalonians of his Party that have left their Country, and particularly to the Grand Chancellor of Barcelona.

Vienna, Oct. 26. On Thursday last the Emperor, accompanied by the Elector of Trier, went to make the Diversion of Hunting near Laxenburg. Yesterday he held a Council in the Castle of Eszterhazy, and in the Evening returned to this City to make his Residence the whole Winter in the Imperial Palace. Baron Gigli arrived here the 23d in the Quality of Envoy from the Republick of Lucca. He written from Segedin, that our Men work very hard every Day upon the Fortifications of that Place; that the Fair had been held there in good Order, to which a great many Turkish Merchants came, and behaved themselves very friendly. But we hear from Cronstade in Transilvania, that they had discovered and seized a Turkish Spy disguised in a Monk's Habit.

From the Gazette a la Main.

Paris, Nov. 13. They write from Marseilles the 2d Instant, that a Ship from Caffa is arrived there, and reports that the Turks have made themselves Masters of all the Places they had attacked on the Island Candia. And that they have taken Napoli di Malvasia, so that there now remains no Place subject to the Venetians in the Morea. Letters from Gironne mention, that they had Advice from Barcelona, that 12 French Ships are arrived there laden with Corn and Cloath, that is designed for Cloathing the Troops: And that two English Ships were also arrived there from the Coast of Barbary, who had given Chase to five Corsairs that had cruised for 18 Days about the Coast of Majorca and Minorca, and had pursued them for two Days, without being able to come up with them. The same Letters say, that the Inhabitants of Castel Folio had taken 27 Miquelets, part of a Troop of 66 whom they are in pursuit of. Another Party of them had appeared on the Side of Ponte Major, and a Detachment is sent out against them.

Edinburgh, Nov. 3. Letters from the Camp at Stirling give an Account, that the Regiments of Clayton and Morrison being arrived from Ireland, were ordered by the Duke of Argyle to stop at Glasgow till they should receive further Direction; and that his Grace had sent a Detachment of 40 Dragoons and a Battallion of Foot to Kilsyth, and 200 Dragoons to Falkirk, to prevent any of the Rebels Southward of us from passing by the Head of the Forth, if in retiring from before General Carpenter they should have taken that Way. But we have Advice, that part of the Highland Foot having deserted, (of which 200 surrendered themselves at Lamington to the Country People) the rest with the Northumberland Rebels are marched with great Precipitation and Disorder into England.

Newcastle, Nov. 4. General Carpenter having Intelligence at Jedburgh on the 28th Instant at 10 in the Morning that the Rebels were gone from London towards Brampton, marched from Newcastle and got to Ellefdon late that Night; and this Morning he came hither with the three Regiments of Dragoons; Hotham's Regiment of Foot was ordered to march by the Way of Woolley, and is expected here to Morrow. We have Advice that on the 2d the Rebels proceeded from Brampton to Perth. General Carpenter will follow them on Sunday, taking with him the Dragoons only for the greater Expedition, and will leave Hotham's Regiment here.

Lancaster, Nov. 4. The Scotch and Northumberland Rebels having left the Borders on the Approach of General Carpenter, and marched by Brampton to Perth, passed on to Appulby, where they arrived last Night, in Number about 600 Horse and 900 Foot; they are expected this Night at Kendal. They are extremely fatigued with their hard Marches, and are but indifferently armed, especially the Horse.

Exeter, Nov. 3. Major General Wills having received Advice that the Rebels from the Borders were marching towards Lancashire, immediately dispatched Orders for ten Regiments of Foot and Dragoons which are in and about that Part of the Country to draw together at Warrington, and is himself gone from hence to put himself at their Head, resolving to march against the Rebels without giving them any Respite.

Deal, Nov. 7. There are now in the Downs his Majesty's Ships, Romney, Rippon, Exeter, Scarborough, Bedford Galley, Hampshire, Burlington, Anglesea, and Swift.

London, November 19th 1715.

On Saturday last the Parliament met, and further adjourned until the 21st Instant.
